846 autos- [Thayer’s Definition]
1) himself, herself, themselves, itself
2) he, she, it
3) the same (Wigram's frequency count is 4,913 not 5,117).

846 autos (ow-tos'); from the particle au [perhaps akin to the base of 109 through the idea of a baffling wind] (backward); the reflexive pronoun self, used (alone or in the comparative 1438) of the third person and (with the proper personal pronoun) of the other persons:
KJV-- her, it (-self), one, the other, (mine) own, said, ([self-], the) same, ([him-, my-, thyself, [your-] selves, she, that, their (-s), them ([selves]), there [-at, -by, -in, -into, -of, -on, -with], they, (these) things, this (man), those, together, very, which. Compare 848. [Strong’s Definition]

HE

Note: This pronoun is generally part of the translation of a verb. Frequently it translates the article before nouns, adjectives, numerals, adverbs, prepositional phrases and the participial form of verbs. Apart from these it translates one of the following:
1. autos ^846^, "he himself and no other," emphatic, e. g., <Matt. 1:21>, where the RV brings out the emphasis by the rendering "it is He"; <3:11> (last clause), where the repeated "He" brings out the emphasis; in some cases it can be marked only by a circumlocution which would not constitute a translation, e. g., <8:24>; this use is very frequent, especially in the Gospels, the epistles of John and the Apocalypse; see also, e. g., <Eph. 2:14, 4:11; 5:23,27>. See SAME, SELF, THIS, VERY.

Pronouns have many different uses in Greek. One of the most common pronouns is autos. Its ordinary use is to “stand in” for a noun to avoid repetition. “James loved Mary, but Mary couldn’t stand James” reduces to “James loved Mary, but she couldn’t stand him”.

In English: (the third person personal pronoun is used like this)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Subjective</th>
<th>Masculine</th>
<th>Feminine</th>
<th>Neuter</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>he</td>
<td>he</td>
<td>it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Possessive</td>
<td>his</td>
<td>her</td>
<td>its</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Objective</td>
<td>him</td>
<td>her</td>
<td>it</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The only significant difference between the third person pronouns and the first and second is that the third person singular pronouns HAVE GENDER. The GENDER and NUMBER of pronouns are determined by the GENDER and NUMBER of the antecedent, and their case is determined by their function in the sentence.

We refer to autos in reference in its function as a personal pronoun. This is because of its translation in terms of the Holy Spirit as “he” and not “it”. The words in John 14:17 in reference to the Holy Spirit is “auto”, what would appear to be the neuter nominative case of the third personal pronoun. So, if He is PERSONAL and not IMPERSONAL or masculine versus feminine, why would AUTO be used and not AUTOS???

In this use (as a pronoun), the gender of the Greek pronoun (autos in this case) is determined NOT BY NATURAL GENDER but BY THE GENDER of the ANTECEDENT. For example, if the antecedent if “world”, which is kosmos in Greek, you would use the masculine form of the pronoun (autos). However, you would not translate autos as “he” but as “it”. We think of the world not as a “he” but as an “it”. The translation of the of the pronoun is therefore based on the natural gender of the Greek noun.

Why is the pronoun for the Holy Spirit “it” and not “he” then? Because pneuma, the Greek noun in this sentence, which is translated here as “Spirit”, is the ANTECEDENT of the pronoun “auto”. The word pneuma is NEUTER in Greek, and therefore, its pronoun SHOULD be rendered “auto”, the NEUTER third person pronoun in Greek. However, the English translation would be rendered based on the NATURAL GENDER of the word being reference, in this case the Holy Spirit.

How do we then know that the Holy Spirit is masculine, i.e. and therefore PERSONAL. Rom 8:26 is another place where “auto” is used as the pronoun for the Spirit, and this is still because the antecedant is a NEUTER noun in the Greek:

Rom 8:26 And in the same way the Spirit also helps our weakness; for we do not know how to pray as we should, but the Spirit Himself [Pneúma] intercedes for [us] with groanings too deep for words; (NAS)

pneuma = neuter, therefore auto = neuter, i.e. “itself” [KJV]

John 14:17 and Rom 8:26 are confusing only because of our inability to express English perfectly into Greek. However... every other instance of personal pronoun usage in reference to the Holy Spirit is MASCULINE, i.e. and therefore personal.

John 16:7 "But I tell you the truth, it is to your advantage that I go away; for if I do not go away, the Helper [parakleetos] shall not come to you; but if I go, I will send Him [auton] to you. (NAS) parakleetos = masculine, therefore auton = masculine, i.e. “him”

John 16:8  "And He [eikinos], when He comes, will convict [elengxei] the world concerning sin, and righteousness, and judgment; (NAS) parakleetos = masculine, therefore eikinos = masculine, i.e. “he”

elengxei = masculine form of “he will convict”

John 16:13  "But when He [eikinos], the Spirit of truth, comes, He will guide [hodeegeesei] you into all the truth; for He will not speak [laleesei] on His own initiative (of Himself [heautou]), but whatever He hears [akousei], He will speak [laleesei]; and He will disclose [anangelei] to you what is to come. (NAS)

hodeegeesei, laleesei, akousei, anangelei = masculine conjugations that combine “him” with the verb heautou = masculine, “Himself”

Acts 13:2 And while they were ministering to the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, "Set apart for Me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them." (NAS)

3427 moi (moy): KJV--I, me, mine, my. = 1st Person

John 14:26  "But the Helper [parakleetos], the Holy Spirit [Pneuma], whom the Father will send in My name, He will teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance all that I said to you.” (NAS) parakleetos = masculine, therefore eikinos = masculine, i.e. “he”

John 15:26  "When the Helper [parakleetos] comes, whom I will send to you from the Father, {that is} the Spirit [Pneuma] of truth, who proceeds from the Father, He will bear witness of Me, (NAS) parakleetos = masculine, therefore eikinos = masculine, i.e. “he”
